DECLINE IN CASH

Resources Caused a Number of Stocks to Take a Tumble.

By Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 7.—The prospect of a decline in the cash resources of the banks of upwards of $7,000,000 proved too much for the fortitude of speculators today and they sold stocks, reversing the movement of yesterday. Although they had the advantage of the strength of individual stocks among the low priced shares, a demoralized tone in one or two of the industrials more than offset this advantage.

The sub-treasury alone has taken up from the banks during the week $6,100,000, including the deposits of the sub-treasury for telegraphic transfer to the interior. The direct movement by express, although supposed to be small on balance, is certainly in favor of the interior.

Liquidation was not urgent in the stock market, but quite general. Both stocks and bonds, however, rallied subsequently to the top prices. Business in bonds continued large.

The total shares traded in numbered 591,700.

DUN'S REVIEW.

By Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 7.—R. G. Dun's review says: Business is progressing along conservative lines. It is without excitement, and without great speculative activity, but with a confident undertone, which is to be expected largely by the fact that leading concerns in most of the great industries have orders booked to employ their machinery for nearly a full capacity during the months when curtailment is usual.

No net reduction in the working force appeared in the last fortnight and a readjustment of wage schedules in some branches of the steel trade was affected without trouble. Prices of commodities are generally steady and the holiday trade is brisk at all points.

The south is particularly cheerful, with cotton firm, and the rice crop coming in at very full prices.

There is no cause for alarm in the small volume of new business at the iron and steel centers. With the first sign of higher prices there came forward a flood of contracts that the mills and furnaces booked and they have orders sufficient to keep their full force employed for months. Hence, there has come a more quiet condition, and less bidding for products. Fortunately quotations were not forced up during the week's greatest activity and now there is no sign of depression. On the other hand, bars are more firmly held, while many idle mills have resumed in this department, and sheet makers also insist on better terms. Other forms of the finished material are steady and at most points pig is unchanged, although concessions have been made for Bessemer at Pittsburg.

Numerous bridges are being erected by railroads and heavy tonnage structural steel is taken. Other railway supplies are in active demand, with rolling stock urgently sought.

BRADSTREET'S REPORT.

By Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 7.—Bradstreet's report says: There is a quieter tone and reduced volume of business doing at wholesale in many lines, but this is not unusual at this season, partly balanced by a larger interest in retail and holiday distribution.

The weather continues still to be a drawback to trade in winter-weight goods, but it is notable that a better report comes from the Northwest than for some weeks past. Southern trade advances remain good, but retail business at eastern markets is still reported backward. In the larger lines of trade new features are not numerous. Textiles are quiet and rather dull. Wool and woolsens are still quiet. Cotton is irregular, and the market is at a standstill, pending the publication of the next government crop report. The high cost of raw cotton has not as yet been equalled by an advance in manufactured goods. The hopeful feature this week, however, was the taking of a large lot of brown cottons for export to China.

The higher trend of values in November has been duplicated in the first week of December and the cereals, long backward in this respect, have led the advance, which, however, have not been steadily maintained.

Wheat, including flour, shipments for the week, aggregated 2,432,153 bushels, against 2,497,889 last week, and 5,133,331 for the corresponding week of 1899, and 6,863,952 in 1898.

Corn exports for the week aggregated 5,371,377 bushels, against 4,801,930 last week, 3,815,699 bushels for the week a year ago and 4,388,535 in 1898.

EDITOR MCKELVAY

Preaches a Sensible Sermon to the Clergy of Brooklyn.

St. Clair McKelway, the distinguished editor of the Brooklyn Eagle, delivered an address to the clergy in the Tompkins Avenue Congregational church, Brooklyn, recently. Among other things, he said:

I think it is well with any church when it has an organic, preservative and aggressive life within itself and when neither its future nor its past can be said to depend upon the permanence or the power of the personality of any man. Man made and man run churches are not to be compared with those that have a life within themselves. The former go out in weakness or in scandal on the death or default of the single individuality on which they depend. The better sort serve not only their own generation, but the generations which come after them.

I do not think the young preachers of today differ much from the young preachers of 1875. Now they build on Drummond or Beecher or Phillips Brooks or Lyman Abbott or Storrs, and they are far from bad models. In my earlier years they built on Cummings or Bushnell or Barrows or Guthrie or Murray MacCheyne or Chalmers or Hugh Miller. Many of them were Chalmersized beyond cure.

The thought of the time is that theology is not a finality, but a fermentation; that it is less God's thought about man than man's limited thought about God. The nineteenth century apologizes to the twentieth just as the eighteenth and seventeenth apologized to the nineteenth for ever having put love of law above the law of love.

He who thinks denominations will cease or will merge into one magnitude the one to which he belongs. One's church is always the church. Old preaching or new preaching, my plea is for the preaching of repentance, salvation, resurrection and brotherhood. The heart of man knows what it wants and knows it can find it in the heart of God.

The conditions of civilization differ, but the virtues of the first century and the wants are those of the nineteenth. Humanity has now the like need of the gospel that it had then. The heart of man is the same. The spiritual outweighs the material in that heart still. As true now it is as then it was, he shall lose his life who saves it, and he shall save it who loses it.

A Common Danger.
